Forest Fires Are Controlled

A forest fire covering over 400 acres of heavy timber about 25 miles north-west and above the North West Branch River in the Gap Pass was put under control by the Alberta Forest Service.

A crew of 20 men, a caterpillar tractor and helicopter fought the fire since noon, Friday, July 14. Cause of the fire is suspected to be a lightning strike during the early morning hours.

A second fire is raging in the Elk Valley district of British Columbia about one and a quarter mile east of the Fording River, and four miles south of Tod Hunter Creek. The fire is about 200 acres in size and forestry officials hope to have the fire under control soon.

Meanwhile Alberta Forest Service officers describe the fire hazard in the Crow's Nest forest area as being very high and persons going into the area over the weekend are urged to use extreme caution with fire and cigarettes.

Exchange Students Leave

A week long taste of western hospitality is something that 24 Montreal area exchange students took back to Eastern Canada after being visitors in the Crow's Nest Pass for one week.

The students exchange was sponsored by the Coleman and Blairmore Catholic Women's Leagues, and the young people were billeted in homes of students from the Pass who will be going to Brantford, Ont., in August on the student exchange plan.

While in the Pass the 24 students were taken on a barbecue to Dutch Creek on the Kananaskis where the Coleman Lions Club treated the young people to a chicken supper and evening of entertainment.

Included in the week-long itinerary was a trip to Waterton Lakes National Park, a trip to the Lethbridge Japanese Gardens, a trip to the Fort MacLeod Rodeo, a hike to the top of Turtle Mountain.

The young people, chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. N. Neppart, also enjoyed horseback riding, swimming, hiking, social evenings and many other events that made their stay in the Pass one to remember.

Emotional upsets, like physical upsets, are very common. But we are more likely to recognise and act on the need for professional help in physical illness. Understanding of emotional problems, and their solutions are discussed in a valuable pamphlet issued by the Mental Health Association. It is called "How To Deal With Mental Problems", and it's free. Write to CMHA, that's the Canadian Mental Health Association 619 Revillon Building, Edmonton.

There are 106 drinking fountains in the streets and squares of Expo 67; 336 public telephones, and enough chairs and benches for 9,000 people.

The quarter billion dollar plant of Great Canadian Oil Sands Limited will start production this summer of crude oil from the vast Athabasca tar sands in Alberta.

The couple were married in Czechoslovakia on July 2, 1917, and came to Canada in 1926, settling in Bellevue, where they have resided since.

Mr. Hvizdos is a retired coal miner and both Mr. Hvizdos (73) and Mrs. Hvizdos (69) are enjoying good health.

Red Cross Ships Clothing

This week the Women's Work Committee of the Alberta-N.W.T. Division, Canadian Red Cross Society, shipped two cartons of boys' shirts and girls' pyjama suits, a total of 427 pieces valued at $779.51, to be used for Vietnam refugees.

In the same shipment were included 22 cases of boys' and girls' clothing and layettes to Indonesia containing a total of 3866 pieces, valued at $4609.46.

A total shipment from the Canadian Red Cross Society of 55 cases went to Laos, containing 17,443 pieces of girls' and boys' clothing valued at $23,735.26.

The world exhibition of 1968 in Brussels, had as its theme: "Balance Sheet for a More Human World". The theme of Expo 67 is: "Man And His World".

One of the finest collections of Canadian currency in existence is on display during Expo 67 at the Main Branch of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in Montreal. It is part of the Bank's own collection of coins and notes which traces the development of Canadian currency since pre-Confederation days. It includes many collectors' items, and is being viewed above by two hostesses from the Expo 67 branch, Donna Kennedy (left) and Alice Archambault. Free-standing showcases allow visitors to inspect closely the colourful bills that have been issued by Canadian banks. Many of the bills with a face value of only one, five or 10 dollars, have a value to collectors of several hundred dollars. Showing of the collection coincides with the 100th anniversary of Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce. It features examples of currency issued by the 14 banks that have combined to form the Commerce, including The Canadian Bank of Commerce and The Imperial Bank of Canada. The display of bills (left) issued by the Eastern Townships Bank in the mid-1800s is an eye-catcher for collectors, while the currency issued by Canadian banks in the early 1900s attracts the most attention because of its colour and variety.

FRIENDLY BORDER — A family makes a film record of its visit to Niagara Falls from a vantage point at the International border on the Rainbow Bridge that overlooks the cataracts. Millions of visitors will cross the three international bridges in the Niagara Falls area this year traveling between the two countries. The U.S., United Nations and Canadian flags are the guardians of the unfortified frontier.

Announcement

I Have Sold my Business to Mr. Leslie Owen

And through this medium, I wish to sincerely thank all those who supported my business for the past 31 years I have lived in Coleman.

I would like to particularly thank those many people who continually gave preference to my store in all their transactions, and in such a manner that it made it a pleasure to be in business here. Their friendly attitude towards me will long be remembered.

For this and other reasons, I have put off my retirement, hoping to find someone that will keep the doors open and serve the community to advantage. This has come about and now I feel that Mr. Leslie Owen will carry on this business and serve the Community as well, if not better, than I have done.

This community needs more businesses and business people, and the only way to have them is by supporting the businesses now in operation. By your support, they will be able to serve you better. Therefore, I wish to ask all those who made their purchases at my store to continue to do so under the management of the new owner, Mr. Leslie Owen.

Sincerely,
FRANK ABOUSSAFY.

OF MANY THINGS

(By Ambrose Hills)

Oh, You Kids!

Langley, British Columbia, held a series of Pioneer Days, when all the clerks in all their stores wore costumes of the last century, and many grandmothers dug deep into their trunks to find old wedding gowns saved for just such occasions.

I saw a couple of very dignified and quite mature ladies wearing such dresses last week. On an impish impulse I stepped up to them and said, "Ladies, aren't you ashamed, going about the streets like that!" One of them looked down her aristocratic old nose at me and asked, "What on earth do you mean?"

"Well," I said sternly, "when you stepped out of that store onto the street, I definitely caught a glimpse of a well-turned ankle!"

That broke them up into great gales of laughter, and much tittering. One of them—the eldest I think—fluttered her lashes at me and said, "Young man, when a lady shows a well-turned ankle, a gentleman should have the propriety to take a well-turned glance—in the other direction!"

I was tempted to say, "23 skidoo and Oh, you kid!" but they were such lovely products of that era I minded my manners and went my way.

I went my way though, wondering if we haven't lost quite a bit in this modern mini-skirted society, compared with the old ways of ruffles and lace. True, we've made life easier with our modern inventions and technology, but few seem satisfied; they keep on wanting more and more. There is nothing wrong with wanting more, but so many seem to want things without having to work for them. The few are producing for the many—and the many, instead of being thankful, appear to hate and detest the few who do the producing, and want to regiment or reduce them.

There was something fine about the old days when every man or woman capable of working was expected to do so or do without. I suppose saying that makes me an old reactionary fuddy-duddy in these modern days—when the halos are being handed around to the political activists who promise that governments will create Utopia in some way I cannot comprehend, sitting "dialoguing together" at Ottawa. I've often watched the doors of those buildings in Ottawa, but I've never seen an ounce of food, a pound of butter, a wheelbarrow or an automobile produced there! When is their slight-of-tongue going to create something we can consume?

Fish Caused Change In West Coast Indians' Culture

Did the leaping ability of the salmon determine the cultural development of the West Coast Indian?

"Yes," says Dr. David Sanger, an archaeologist with the National Museum of Canada. He proposes a plausible theory to account for these rather unusual events which took place 6,000 years ago.

In early post-glacial times, Indians fished for salmon along the Columbia River. Then in approximately 4,000 B.C. salmon fishing above the Celilo Falls disappeared, only to reappear again around the year 1265 A.D.

What happened during this 5,000-year period?

Dr. Sanger suggests that the rapidly moving Columbia River, combined with the barren terrain of the Columbia Plateau, created a falls too steep for the salmon to ascend. Instead they were forced to seek different spawning ground. Indians living upriver were compelled to alter their diet and consequently, their basic culture.

Years passed while they developed a culture more adaptable to the parched, desert-like lands.

Then, in 1265, at approximately the same time the first Parliament was being convened in England, a massive landslide swept across the Columbia River, raising the level 300 feet. This provided an access route for the salmon, intent on spawning upstream.

Abandoning their food-gathering customs, the Indians reverted to a fish-culture, similar to that of their relatives of the north, the Indians of what is known today as British Columbia. Their cultures merged.

"This blending of cultures," Dr. Sanger said, "may not be directly attributable to the opening of the old spawning routes to the upper reaches of the Columbia River."

It was, however, effected at the same time and appears to be a logical answer to a problem which has intrigued archaeologists for some time. When the fish moved upstream again, Indians from the northern portion of the plateau moved downward, bringing with them new ideas of subsistence and new patterns of living.

ALBERTA HEALTH PLAN

Report From Parliament Hill

(Lawrence E. Kindt, M.P.)

Ottawa, July 4, 1967.
During our Centennial Year we have been reminded at every turn of Canada's history over the last 100 years, but on the anniversary of our HUNDRETH BIRTHDAY a few thoughts on Canada's future are perhaps appropriate. In this respect there are almost innumerable subjects that could be mentioned, but one is of paramount importance — Canada's Constitution. Some sort of meeting must be held just as soon as possible to provide Canada with a new Constitution. The British North America Act, passed 100 years ago, was no doubt a reasonably good Constitution at that time, but over the years it has increasingly failed to meet Canada's needs. Most of Canada's present-day problems have their roots in our existing Constitution. In the last few years a number of provinces, such as Quebec, British Columbia and Newfoundland, have so interpreted our Constitution that in some respects they are becoming more and more like independent states. If Canada is to remain a nation and develop into the great and unified country that it should, the Federal Government must have greater authority in a number of fields. This authority can only be acquired by consent, and such consent can only be obtained by a Conference of the Federal and Provincial Governments.

A Conference of this nature should not only be made up of representatives of the Federal and Provincial Governments, but also of other prominent Canadians, with appropriate backgrounds. It won't be easy to hammer out a new Constitution as there are many different points of view respecting the necessary fields of authority of the Federal and Provincial Governments, but it can be done.

These same difficulties were present in 1865, but the Fathers of Confederation had the determination and the broad-mindedness to work out appropriate compromises.

Two main decisions must be made:

1 — A concise and appropriate division of powers between the Federal and Provincial Governments.

2 — The Federal and Provincial Governments must have the necessary fund-raising (taxation) powers to be able to finance the fields of Government which they will be empowered to administer.

At the present time the Provinces and Municipalities have much of the expensive work of government to carry out—education, road-building, welfare, etc., and insufficient means of acquiring revenue to carry on these projects. This has led to many very unfair tax burdens. At the present time, Canada is a "Tax Jungle", and there are no over-riding principles on which taxes are based, except to get the most feathers with the least amount of squawk.

"Just a Minute, Please!"

ALCOHOL AND GASOLINE DO NOT MIX—

happened in the corridor of a hospital.

"Oh, God, let it be me, not that little boy!"

The man wept copiously, wringing his hands and crying over and over again, "God, let it be me!" "God, let it be me!"

The tears left me cold . . .

It all started on a bright Saturday afternoon when a 12-year-old boy took his little sister downtown. At a marked intersection the little boy cautiously waited for the red light to turn green and then indicated to his sister that they could cross the street. Suddenly a car screened from nowhere and threw the youngsters into the air. The little girl was dead when the policeman picked her up, and the little boy was rushed to a hospital.

"It will be a miracle if the boy ever walks again," the doctor said.

Yes, the tears left me cold. The man could cry enough tears to fill an ocean but it would not now put life back into the body of that little girl or strength into the legs of her brother.

A little straight thinking on the part of a man who thought it was smart to drink and drive, prior to the accident, could have saved a human life and a crippling.

The Highway Traffic Act endeavors to make people realize that they should not drive if they are drinking or going to drink alcoholic beverages. The six months' suspension of the operator's licence for a first offence under the Criminal Code of Canada for driving while impaired is continued in our new Act. Now, however, the Court in its discretion may, for a first offender, permit a restricted licence to be issued to the suspended driver for the purpose of making a living. A second offence for impaired driving within a five-year period will continue to carry a mandatory suspension of at least 12 months.

A new provision carries a three-year suspension for a third conviction within a five-year period. There is no authority whatsoever given to the Court or to the Minister of Highways to reduce suspensions for second or third offences.

Impaired and intoxicated driving are Criminal Code offences and the Court may, under the provisions of the Code, prohibit a person convicted of such offences from driving anywhere in Canada for a period up to three years or order imprisonment or both. The provisions in the Highway Traffic Act come into play only after a person is convicted for these offences under the Code.

Tough laws and tough enforcement and tough courts can certainly be potent deterrents but the real answer lies in everyone deciding to not drink while driving before he hears a doctor say:

"The boy . . . who obeyed all the laws . . . who had a whole life ahead of him . . . will never walk again!"

"Laws too gentle are seldom obeyed; too severe, seldom executed."—Franklin.

Polystyrene Beads—

Recently National Institute of Drycleaning's Analysis Laboratory has been receiving a number of dresses, blouses and sweaters—trimmed with beads that look like glass. Some are American-made. Others are imported from Hong Kong and other Far East countries. The hang-tag attached to the 100 per cent wool, full-fashioned, hand-embroidered sweater recommends "Dry Clean Only". Due to the very intricate nature of the embroidered design and the beautiful colors, drycleaning is recommended "to insure lasting beauty and freshness". But the sweater cannot be dry-cleaned without a customer complaint.

The decorative trim is made of Polystyrene. Polystyrene softens and partially dissolves in both Stoddard solvent and perchlorethylene. It is also affected by steam in finishing. Steam causes the shiny polystyrene to dull. Some beads are not only partially dissolved but also cause stains on the fabric.

Full-fashioned knit sweaters imported from British Crown Colony of Hong Kong are causing consumer complaints. Similar items have been received from other Far East countries. These include dresses and blouses of woven fabrics.

N.I.D. informs that while the Industry Advisory Committee on Textile Information is making progress toward a sensible care labelling program, its good effects will be noted only in American-produced garments and household fabrics. Labels that designate imported merchandise suggest "prestige" to many consumers. However, the imports may still be unsatisfactorily labelled.

Alberta Health Plan

Though the Alberta Health Plan is now in effect throughout the province, Alberta residents may still register as individuals.

Dr. J. A. D. Paul, Health Plan medical director, says many people are under the impression that registration has been closed since July 1st, the plan's effective date. However, anyone can register at any time in the Alberta Health Plan with benefits becoming effective immediately the application is filed.

Dr. Paul adds that if optional benefits are not taken out at the time the basic coverage is purchased, or if additional options are desired, they may be added on October 1, January 1, April 1 and July 1.

Pensioners are supplied by the Alberta Health Plan with basic health services along with certain options, if these are not otherwise provided, and they continue to use their Hospitalization and Medical Services card to obtain certain additional services.

SOUND OF MUSIC

The Sound of Music, starring that delightful girl Julie Andrews and a passel of utterly appealing children, charming nuns and nasty Nazis, and the magnificent Salzkammergut—surely one of the most beautiful mountain areas in the world—is a motion picture that no southwest man, woman or child should miss as it begins its long run in Coleman, starting August 2nd and running for two weeks.

This movie deserved every one of the five Academy Awards it received. As a work of art, it has generated immense popular empathy in seemingly endless runs in London, New York and Los Angeles, Toronto, Montreal and Regina.

We think there may be some hope for the human race contained in the continuing massive popularity of this thoroughly "whole-some" movie.

Today, when so much of the emphasis in mass entertainment bears down heavily on sex and violence, it is absolutely delightful to sit back amid tears and laughter and watch Julie Andrews and those wonderful children sing and dance and run against the lovely background of the Austrian Alps and the baroque richness of Salzburg.

The color camera work is among the best we've ever seen in Sound of Music. And the music bears all the beauty of simplicity.

Those serene nuns, with the Mother Abbess to the fore, are magnificent. This isn't just another big movie at a community theatre—it's a major event.

Advertising...

Modern advertising is a necessity to hold and build business. Be proud of your business, of the goods you have to sell, of the services you have to offer in your particular line. Show the progressive spirit and the desire to serve by advertising. Do not hide your light under a bushel—proclaim far and wide who you are and what you have to sell and where your place of business is, for public memory is short, and advertising is a powerful aid to all types of businesses. Moreover, people as a general rule shop where they are invited.
